ESMT again in Top 30 of the "Which MBA?" ranking of The Economist

- ESMT MBA advances four places and is ranked 26th worldwide and 7th in Europe
- Highest ranked MBA program in Germany

ESMT European School of Management and Technology has been placed 26th in this year's The Economist "Which MBA?" ranking of the top global 100 full-time MBA programs. The international business school moved up four places when compared to last year, making it the top-ranked MBA program in Germany and seventh in Europe. ESMT was ranked first worldwide in student diversity.

The ranking of full-time MBA programs by The Economist is an internationally recognized assessment of the quality of MBA programs. The ranking is made up of a number of key indicators, including the satisfaction of current and former students as well as career development and salary increase. The current full-time MBA class at ESMT, which began the one-year program in January of this year, is made up of 63 students from 34 different countries.

"We are delighted with this positive assessment of our program by The Economist," said Jörg Rocholl, President of ESMT. "To be part of the Top 10 in Europe pays tribute to the quality of the program and the growing international reputation of our business school."
